Lesley Allan Western Review

On Sept. 22 more construction began on Hwy. 22 to replace a culvert north of Drayton Valley near Twp. Rd. 494.

More construction slows traffic on Highway 22

Work expected to last into November

Lesley Allan Western Review

Starting last week no matter which way drivers go on Hwy. 22 they'll come into contact with construction as a new project began Sept. 22 north of Drayton Valley. Taking place just north of Twp. Rd. 494, by the Drayton Valley Golf Course and Pih-To-Sive Campground, the work being done is deemed a necessity as the stretch of highway is one that is older.

"This road was initially built as a gravel road and the culvert installed in 1955," explains Tina Stewart, communications representative for Alberta Transportation, in an e-mail. "In 1979, the highway was overlaid and paved."

"The culvert has reached the end of its service life," she continues. "The new culvert that will be installed is larger, with a diameter of 3000 mm and will have a better capacity to accommodate increased water flow and debris."

As with any project taking place on a busy section of road, a lot of preparation had to be done in order for work to begin.

"Accommodating the traffic flow on relatively busy sections of highway can be a challenge," says Stewart. "This section of highway has an average daily traffic count of 7,200 vehicles a day."

"Prior to beginning work, the contractor develops a Traffic Accommodation Strategy that aims to create a safe construction zone and maintain traffic movement," explains Stewart. "By obeying all signs and signals and reducing their speed to the posted limit, motorists play their part in helping maintain a safe environment for highway construction work." With only one culvert being replaced, those who don't know much about construction might not understand why the work is expected to take roughly two months, but due to the activity in the area more work needs to be done on top of the culvert work.

According to Stewart, work begins with signage being posted, but then carries into building a detour, excavating and removing the old culvert, backfilling and paving the highway, and removing the detour.

Traffic going into both the golf course and campground are included in the detour route. Work is expected to wrap up in November, depending on weather, and will cost approximately $900,000.

For more information on the work being done call toll free 310-0900 then dial 780-427-2731, or visit <http://www.alberta.ca>.

URBAN HOUSING RENTAL ACCOMMODATION

Is your Gross 'Family' Income less than $50,000.00 per year?
Are you working towards purchasing your own home and have a positive employment History?
The Urban Housing Program may be your answer...

The program is intended to give tenants an opportunity to improve their ability to obtain independent housing ownership by giving them affordable accommodation for a set period of time. (Normally three years with an opportunity to continue another three years with a positive history of tenancy and employment.)

The Urban Housing Program grew out of a need to provide affordable housing to those people working hard towards improving their situation. It is not intended as a long-term housing solution. Applicants need to ensure their income is sufficient to pay the rent, utilities, living expenses and also savings for a future home. Rental Rates are set based on the unit available ranging from small apartments at $650.00 - to larger units at $975.00 - these are subject to periodic rental increases. Rental References & Employment References are required. (A copy of your notice of assessments) from Revenue Canada is also required.)

The Town of Drayton Valley offers a 'Making Financial Sense' program which is Mandatory if you are selected as a Tenant in the Urban Housing Program. This program provides tenants with valuable information on the requirements and process in becoming a financially independent home owner.

Applications for Accommodation may be picked up at the

MAN MURKINS SUPERFICIAL WOUND

Drayton Valley RCMP responded to reports of a domestic disturbance on Sept. 22. A man had allegedly assaulted his partner and when police arrived had a knife. The man held the knife to his own throat and inflicted what RCMP termed a 'superficial' cut to his neck before the situation was brought under control.

MAN CHARGED AFTER ASSAULTING MOTHER

A man is facing several charges after police responded to a call on Sept. 17. When police arrived they found a woman with cuts to her hands and arms after she was attacked by her son.

The man, in his 20s, allegedly attacked his mother after she refused to give him the keys to her car or to give him cigarettes. He then threatened her and attacked her with the knife.

The man left the scene on a bicycle before police arrived, however he was later located and charged. He is facing charges of assault with a weapon, uttering threats and failing to comply with court conditions.

MALES FACING DRUG CHARGES

Two males have been charged with possession of a controlled substance for the purpose of trafficking after being arrested earlier this month.

After complaints to RCMP about two males packaging what was believed to be ecstasy in capsules and selling it, Drayton Valley RCMP Sgt. Andrew Grainger said police received numerous reports of the two males being seen around the high school. They were arrested and charged on Sept. 11. The same two males were again stopped by police on Sept. 23. Grainger said it's unclear if the two were attempting to sell the capsules as ecstasy or as another substance.

BE AWARE OF HUNTING

The arrival of autumn also means the start of hunting season in rural areas. RCMP is reminding residents to be aware that hunting may be the source of an increase in gas shots they hear near their homes this time of year.

Town earns five blooms in national competition

Achieves special recognition for interpretive signage project

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

Drayton Valley may not have come home as the top Communities in Bloom (CIB) finisher, but five blooms and a special recognition is still a win.

"We were very close to winning," said Communities in Bloom committee chair Nicole Nadeau last week.

In fact, Drayton Valley scored 82.5 per cent overall from judges Gerry Teahen and Claire Laberge, who visited the community in July. Drayton Valley came in behind Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, which won the 5,001-8,000 category at the Communities in Bloom National Symposium and Awards held Sept. 18-21 in Charlottetown, PEI.

However, the community earned five blooms and special recognition for the interpretive signage project completed by Evergreen School students and the Eagle Point-Blue Rapids Parks Council.

The project, which particularly impressed judges Gerry Teahen and Claire Laberge, saw Grade 4 students and the Parks Council work to install QR codes on signs along the Rotary/Pembina Nordic Community Trails. The codes link trail users to information on local flora, fauna and the river valley area.

Nadeau said Teahen and Laberge noted they are hard markers when it comes to the communities they visit. Each community is scored in categories that include tidiness, environmental action, heritage conservation, urban forestry, landscape and floral displays. Particular attention is paid to volunteer efforts and the participation of municipalities, the private sector and the community as a whole.

The signage project that earned the community the special recognition award was what stuck out as a highlight for Teahen, said Nadeau. For Laberge, it was a multi-cultural welcome event held at the peace pole in Northview Park.

Part of the feedback the local committee receives, is recommendations for areas of improvement. Nadeau said the judges suggested the community work on strengthening its historical aspects, including the museum.

The CIB committee will take a look at the recommendations to see if they want to engage with the community to move forward on any of them, said Nadeau.

The committee has already decided to focus on the restoration of the mural at the Drayton Valley legion this coming year. Although members had initially thought to step back from competition next year, with the option of taking part nationally again in 2015, Nadeau said the group will have to discuss what they want to do moving forward.

The awards ceremonies were great exposure for the community, but were only one part of a four-day event.

The community got further exposure when Nadeau took part as a panel speaker in front of more than 200 people, talking about the success Drayton Valley has enjoyed with its community gardens. That led to further discussions with representatives from other communities across Canada.

"It's a lot of community sharing," she said.

The symposium also offers many different sessions, including two Nadeau found especially interesting on composting and waste management.

"There were a lot of great things we brought back," said Nadeau, noting she has bags of materials with ideas that could be incorporated into the local community.

No reminder should be needed to obey emergency directions

It seems ridiculous that local emergency services feel the need to remind motorists about how they should behave when they approach an emergency scene on the road. However, last week that was exactly what Drayton Valley/Brzeau County Fire Services Fire Chief Tom Thomson was doing.

When the fire department, or EMS get an emergency call their priority becomes getting there as quickly as safety allows. They should not have to worry about motorists on the road who do not pull over to allow them to pass. Whatever the reason, whether driver inattention, ignorance or some excuse in between, it's not acceptable. Traffic on both sides of the road should pull to the side (so long as it is safe to do so) to allow emergency vehicles with lights activated to pass. Failing to do so will add to response time and the services. That might not mean much to you as a motorist with your own places to go, but for the individual or family who needs assistance those seconds could be vitally important.

Motorists may also, at some point in their travels on local roads, come across emergency services at the scene of a collision. Depending on the circumstances traffic may be impacted through delays, detours or reduced lanes for a matter of minutes or a matter of hours. Despite what, according to Thomson, some people may think, the emergency services do not do this to merely inconvenience drivers. It's essential in order to allow emergency services to do their jobs safely and effectively. For motorists to think their destination is more important than that is ridiculous.

Emergency services members should never have to deal with motorists arguing with them, hurling verbal abuse at them, or worse, when what they are doing is to ensure the safety of those working at the collision scene as well as other drivers on the road. Nor should they have to worry about the possibility of a passing motorist stopping their vehicle and exiting it in order to take a photo of the collision scene. That is both extremely dangerous and extremely disrespectful to those involved in the incident. A desire to get a photo of a collision on social media should not trump those things.

The public depends on the emergency services to respond quickly when there is trouble of some kind, whether it be criminal, fire or medical. Yet most often it is also the public that presents the biggest obstacle through foolish, dangerous, or simply annoying actions that lack common sense.

Greeting card gripes

There and Back

inconvenience of caring about others.

The problem is that it's close to impossible to find a card that strikes the correct balance and includes a verse that your family and friends could plausibly see you saying to them, either once you've had enough glasses of red wine to draw the emotions to the surface.

I don't want a card that's got three pages of flowery verse spewing sentiment that makes me want to throw up. That's not really me. I don't really do that well with overt sentimentality.

My misadventure is usually buried fairly deeply under a blanket of sarcasm, self-deprecating humour and awkwardness.

But when it comes to cards, for most occasions, it is either one extreme or another. It's either some maudlin manuscript that uses every synonym and adjective related to love imaginable, or a card with an animal on the front doing some sort of headgear with the affecting verse "That's off to your special day."

It's all garbage! I can't believe people get paid to come up with some of this stuff. All I wanted was something simple and straightforward in a happy font.

This is the card I wanted: "Hey, Nam, I love you. Happy birthday!"

This elusive dream card would perhaps have a picture of a single flower, or maybe a wrapped gift. I would be willing to go as far as an adorable animal doing something birthday-related like eating cake or holding balloons (I mean, I'm not made of stone. A dog holding balloons in its mouth? Who wouldn't go for that?)

Such a card does not exist — and I was looking for TI-BEEB!

I briefly considered a blank card, but I just didn't have the time to conciliate the amount of time necessary to access those emotional channels.

The stress became so intense I considered simply cutting all ties with those involved. In hindsight that may have been a bit melodramatic.

In the end, with the amount of work time this "quick errand" was eating up mounting, I chose the most tolerable of the selections and have made a renewed vow to handcraft in the future, avoiding the card aisle altogether.

Save it for a frame, not social media

Since I'm 30 I'm at that age where many, many, many of my friends are having babies. Yeah, congratulations to them all! Currently I would guarantee that my Facebook newfeed is made up of the following posts: 75 per cent baby pictures and other baby related posts, 10 per cent fur babies, which I contribute to on a regular basis as my dogs are my children, 10 per cent health and nutrition, and 5 per cent miscellaneous.

For the most part I don't mind the constant baby bombardment as I have to admit my friends and acquaintances make beautiful children and as much as I'm not ready to have my own children, 10 per cent health and nutrition, and 5 per cent miscellaneous.

Okay so that might have sounded a little creepier than I hoped, but I hope you all know what I mean...moving on. As much as I enjoy these pictures there comes a time when I cannot stand to see them and it's not because I'm offended by it, but rather I'm uncomfortable with the public nature of Facebook, even with private settings, and what certain actions could result in.

From babies sleeping, to toddlers making a mess with their food, all of these things are fine. I do not however understand the need for some parents to post pictures of their children in the bathroom, or just being naked.

Lesley's Lessons
Lesley Allan

Yes I understand it's a natural part of being a parent, after all we have all lived through the pleasure of having parents drag out bath tub pictures and other embarrassing memories to friends, relatives and significant others. It's pretty much a rite of passage in any relationship to see naked baby pictures of the other, while loving parents post, giggle and make the situation even more embarrassing by pointing out how cute your baby was.

Babies are small, cuddly and chubby and taking pictures of them at all points of their growth is normal and fine, but there are certain things that should stay within the family and in a physical photo album, or hard drive, and not on a social media site.

With so many people close to me having babies one of the things I keep finding myself saying "please for the love of God do not be a parent that puts baby pictures on Facebook!"

In all honesty it makes me sick to think what could be done with those pictures and I pretty much cringe every time I see them appear on my newfeed.

People fail to understand time and time again that Facebook is a public site and despite the strict privacy settings that people can put on individual profiles, the truth of the matter is they are still accessible to people who know where to look.

We live in an age where people place too much trust on something so volatile. From storing files on iCloud, to posting things online for others to see, we need to be more aware of the fact that technology blurs the lines of personal property and public content and that's where the issue with Facebook lies.

So to every parent out there, and to extend that further EVERYONE please pause before you hit the post button. If you ask yourself "Is this something I'd be willing to show perfect strangers on the street?" and your answer is yes, by all means post away, but exercising caution, especially when it involves children, is an important thing when it comes to social media.

Around the water cooler...

Welcome to this final water cooler of September! Wow, did that month fly by, or what?

Once again you've let us down by not phoning or e-mailing in your birthday and anniversary wishes. Luckily, social media rarely drops the ball and thanks to Facebook we have at least one birthday to share with you.

We want to send out super huge birthday wishes to Corey Peebles, who celebrates on Sept. 30. There is no one else quite like him, and we mean that as a compliment! Have a wonderful day, Corey! All the best for the year ahead!

We're entering October, which means the Drayton Valley/Brzeau County Fire Services are going to be extra busy with a month of fire prevention activities in local schools and the community.

We will have more information on that next week, but to tide you over we have a few dates to pass along.

Tomorrow night, on Oct. 1, firefighters at Station No. 1 in Lodgepole are inviting the community to come to the fire station in the hamlet for an open house. The open house will run from 6-9 p.m., and visitors will be able to fill up on hotdogs and hamburgers while chatting with firefighters and checking out the station's fire equipment.

Then, on Oct. 4, get Fire Prevention Month started off right with the kickoff event at Canadian Tire from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Along with hotdogs and hamburgers families can meet local firefighters, fire services equipment, fire extinguishers and snag some goodies. It's gearing up to be another great month for the fire services!

Last week the Western Review had the chance to talk briefly with Dr. Michael Ureger, who will be coming to the community to talk about building resilient families and resilient communities. What we heard in just our brief interview was enough to convince us the free community presentation on Oct. 6 from 7-9 p.m. is not to be missed.

Supervised children's activities will be provided, so mark it on your calendar and head to the MacKenzie Conference Centre to learn about some tools your family can use to create resiliency.

Looks like we've once again come to the end. Remember, you can send your water cooler tidbits to courtney.whalen@draytonvalley.com or call 780-542-5380 ext. 24.

Have a happy and sensational start to October!

Work with children to find the right balance

I remember the beginning of every school year being filled with excitement, nervousness, and stress permeated my life. Students can feel a range of emotions with the return of the school year. Adjustments to new teachers, more homework, and the start of many of their extracurricular activities pervade children's lives.

Throughout elementary and junior high school I danced at a studio in Drayton Valley in what would be considered my spare time. This activity came with the added stress of a 40 minute drive each way and caused more than a little conflict with my school schedule. Leaving school early to make it to dance class on time became a regular occurrence. Dance would often run late into the evening and I would have to eat meals at the studio, regularly missing bedtime at home. I was eventually dancing several days a week and this busy dance schedule took time away from my family and friends.

Now don't get me wrong, I still managed to fit family time, friend time, and even a few other school sports in, but it was never easy. Looking back I can see that it was probably just as stressful for my parents to accommodate my busy schedule, not to mention accommodating the similar needs of my brother and sisters. Eventually splitting time between school and activities became balancing school work. These years of demanding schedules and managing time prepared me for the world.

I am sure many families can relate to this hectic lifestyle. With children often involved in multiple activities, how do we find a healthy balance for children to enjoy?

Communication is key in understanding how your child is feeling. Ask them how their day has been, ask them what kind of work they are doing in school, and ask them how they are feeling. Pay attention to how they answer these kinds of questions; are they excited to tell you about these things or do they seem withdrawn? Think about the activities that your children are doing. Are they activities that are important to your children or are they important to you?

Extracurricular activities have many positive benefits for children, such as developing self-esteem as well as developing physical, social, and intellectual abilities. If you notice your children's grades start to fall, they are not tired to finish homework, they are not sleeping well, or they complain about not seeing their friends then it might be time to cut back. Talk to your child about the importance of a balanced lifestyle and determine what activity is the most important to them. Problem solve with your child, maybe you both decide on a scheduling change or eliminating an activity altogether in favour of another. Take the time to come up with a solution that works for you and your child. Solutions should benefit your child's social, emotional, physical, and intellectual well-being. How do you find a balance? Post a comment on our blog page at www.AimforSuccess.ca.

Fire Services briefs

FIRE SERVICES CALLED TO CLEAN UP SPILL

On Sept. 19 the Drayton Valley/Breazeau County Fire Services were called to an incident on the river hill where oil had spilled all over the road.

The spill was caused after a semi-truck experienced engine failure. Fire crews worked to clean up the spill and direct traffic around the incident.

That call was one of 11 fire crews responded to between Sept. 17-24.

A residential fire alarm around 12:30 p.m. on Sept. 17 turned out to be false. Residents at the home were installing a new alarm system, but had not properly disconnected their previous system, causing it to go off during the installation.

Later that afternoon, around 2 p.m. the fire services were called to investigate an odour complaint in a local industrial area. It was determined the smell was the result of a company offloading solvent into a tank. The process created a vapour that migrated onto the property of another business, irritating employees there.

Cooking set off the fire alarm at a local residence around 2 p.m. on Sept. 18. Firefighters went to investigate a smoke detector that kept going off after an elderly lady stopped by the fire department on the morning of Sept. 20 to inform them of the problem. Firefighters attended her home and found the smoke detector was faulty. A new one was installed for the resident.

Also that morning, crews from Station No. 2 in Breazeau County, when crews arrived they found the blaze, which burned out to be a resident burning without a permit.

Station No. 2 was called out to a motor vehicle collision for a vehicle hauling a trailer on Sept. 22. They received the call of the single-vehicle collision in the area of Hwy. 616 and Range Road 40 around 10:30 a.m. Only minor injuries were reported in the truckload.

Firefighters from Station No. 3 were also dispatched to a call on Sept. 22. Around 2 p.m. the department received a call about a downed power line in the area of 55 Ave. and 49 St. A piece of large equipment in that location had snagged the line and tore it down. The proper utilities were called to fix the downed line.

Sept. 23 brought another collision call for Station No. 2. Crews were dispatched to a two-vehicle collision on Hwy. 20 approximately four kilometres south of Breazeau around noon. No injuries were reported in that incident where a vehicle had collided with the back of another vehicle.

Rounding out calls for the seven-day period was one that came in at 9 p.m. on Sept. 23. Crews responded to reports of a vehicle fire on Hwy. 20 at Wp. Road 482. When crews arrived the vehicle was fully engulfed in flames. RCMP are investigating that incident.

FOLLOW DIRECTIONS AT COLLISION SCENES
During the course of their duties members of the fire services, along with other emergency services in the area, are required to respond to collisions on local roads and highways. While members of the emergency services are at a scene taking care of victims, investigating the cause, clearing up the scene and attempting to get things moving as quickly as possible, it is important for motorists to follow signs and instructions, said Drayton Valley/Breazeau County Fire Services Fire Chief Thom Thomson.

Over the past year emergency services have responded to numerous collisions, many of which can be attributed to causes such as speed, distracted driving, making improper turns or failing to obey traffic signals such as stoplights or stop signs.

"When these events happen the emergency services are called to scene," said Thomson, noting that besides the fire services, RCMP, EMS and other utility companies.

Each of the emergency services have jobs to do at the scene of a collision. Among the responsibilities of the fire services is protecting the scene. Thomson said fire trucks are used as a visible blocker at collision scenes for a number of reasons, including visibility to oncoming traffic, safety for those working at the collision and privacy for those involved if there are injuries or a fatality.

When position equipment at a scene he said trucks are often parked at an angle. This ensures that if they are hit by oncoming motorists, something that has happened in the past, they will go off the road and not into the collision scene where personnel are working or into oncoming traffic.

Once emergency services arrive at the scene of a collision it will be well marked. Emergency vehicles will have their lights flashing. Thomson said that should be a signal to motorists to slow down and watch for directions in case the road is temporarily closed, or traffic is being re-routed or put down to one lane. Pyrons and emergency road signs will be put up needed and often there will be people flagging the scene to direct motorists.

Thomson said the emergency services work co-operatively to determine how traffic should be handled and where signage should be set up. Depending on where the collision has taken place the emergency services may set up traffic warnings or diversions further away, to give motorists plenty of time to slow down and proceed cautiously, or be rerouted if necessary.

The speed limit through an emergency scene is 60 km/hr, however Thomson said that's a maximum.

"We would prefer motorists to slow down more because there are people working who might not be paying attention to the road and motorists while they are work at a collision, but drivers should be sure their attention is fixed on obeying directions and proceeding safely," continued Thomson.

Motorists should not be attempting to take pictures of a collision while driving through, or stop their vehicle and get out at a collision scene unless they have been specifically instructed to do so, or if they are the first vehicle to come across a collision prior to emergency services arriving.

It is imperative for safety that motorists obey all traffic signs and verbal instructions at collision scenes, drive slowly and stay focused on their own driving, not be distracted by trying to see what is happening at the collision scene.

Acquire the tools to help build a resilient family

Free presentation by Dr. Michael Ungar to offer tools for parents, caregivers, teachers, families

Courtney Whalen

Dr. Michael Ungar

A presentation coming to Drayton Valley next week wants to give families a 'booster shot' to help them guard against the tough times they are all likely to encounter. Dr. Michael Ungar who, among his many credits, is a family therapist and professor and director of the Resilience Research Centre at Dalhousie University, will be at the MacKenzie Conference Centre on Oct. 6 to talk to the community about ways to build resiliency in their children, and their family as a whole. Ungar draws on more than 25 years of experience as a social worker and therapist, as well as working internationally on research surrounding resiliency. The message that Ungar shared at a conference attended by Drayton Valley and District FCSB Coordinator Lola Strand and others from the area, 'just resonated with us,' she said last week. Wanting to bring Ungar's message on resiliency as it relates to both children and families and communities to Drayton Valley, FCSB partnered with other organizations, including Wild Rose School Division, Town of Drayton Valley, Brazeau County and Alberta Health Services, to make it happen.

Noting that all individuals and families experience tough times or struggles at some point, the presentation is open to everyone present that they can consider adopting into their own situation. 'The talk is made to be more of an inoculation...,' he said. 'A booster shot against future issues.'

The ideas he talks about can be used as preventative tools, but those who are already going through difficult situations as a family can still take away something beneficial, he noted. At the end of every presentation Ungar said he leaves time for a question and answer session to extend the conversation with those who are attending.

Having made presentations to group of hundreds of people as well as smaller community sessions, Ungar said the idea of resiliency and the importance of creating strong children, families and communities is something that is growing more mainstream. 'We do have a bigger language for these things,' he said. 'And therefore people are coming with more questions.'

'These are messages that are resonating,' he continued, noting that extends internationally from big cities to small communities wanting to have conversations about resiliency. The free community session will run from 7-9 p.m. at the MacKenzie Conference Centre. No pre-registration is required and supervised activities for children will be provided. An additional session, focusing on building resilient communities, will be held with various community stakeholders the following day.

To find out more about the work Ungar does, visit his website at www.michaelungar.com or find him on Facebook.

Frustrated with delays, woman goes to U.S. for treatment

Local resident pays out of pocket to have knee surgery

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

Frustrated with the medical service she was receiving locally, an area resident opted to fly to the U.S. to get a knee surgery. Shari Gelin, who spent more than $7,000 out of pocket to get her knee treated south of the border, said it is getting harder and harder to see a doctor.

With her doctor at the Malone clinic flying back and forth to South Africa, Gelin said she was given a shot of morphine by a replacement doctor at the clinic and asked to see if there was a change in a week. When there was no change, she went back and asked for a referral.

"He got a girl at the Malone clinic to do a referral and I didn't hear anything and I didn't hear anything," she finally phoned her back and she said you probably won't hear anything for four months. And I also checked with a doctor in Leduc who is a sports injury specialist and he said, and this is after I had privately paid an MRI to see what was going on, he said meniscus was ripped off very bad and he said it needs to be fixed within two months or it'll never be right, so that's when I did my research and found the best orthopaedic surgeon that does knees in Berkeley and I phoned," she said.

The Western Review tried to contact the Malone Clinic but no one was available for comment. Gelin said in her attempt to find alternatives she had tried to go the local route first and phoned the Malone Clinic who asked her if she was new to Drayton Valley. When the reply came that she has been living here for 15 years she was told there wasn't a doctor available to see her.

"She said no we can't, they're short staffed over there (at Malone Clinic) and all of their patients are coming over here and if we take their patients then we can't see our own patients, which is true. But that leaves me as a resident of Drayton Valley, been here for 15 years, on paper I have a doctor, but in reality I don't have a doctor because I can't see him. So even if I had something as simple as bladder infection or whatever, I would need to go to the emergency (at the Drayton Valley hospital)," she said.

Dr. Clive Giger who works at Clario Clinic said it is not fair to expect them to see patients from other clinics because they're struggling to meet the demand that comes from their own patients.

He added that doctors are feeling the pressure too.

"With the increasing demand from the public not enough doctors and of course reducing healthcare keeps getting cut, (we're) pressured to do more and more with less and less," he said.

He explained that a doctor sees anywhere between 25 to 45 patients per day and the number varies depending on how the doctor is feeling that day.

"I think all doctors feel pressure to see more but at the same time, at the end of the day you want to provide quality care. At any given day I could see 80 people in a day, but I can't because it wouldn't be quality care. And that's the same with all doctors in Drayton Valley," he added.

Gelin has an injured arm currently, and plans to fly to the U.S. soon to get it fixed.

"Albertans are falling through the cracks, and not everybody like me has the means to pay out of pocket and go to the States. How many people are there in pain and suffering, no one to help them, and it's like I said, if this hadn't been addressed in two months, I would probably be crippled. I may not (have) walk properly again," she said.

There is a problem, and it is not limited to a Drayton Valley or even an Alberta problem, it is a Canadian problem explained Pembina Physician Recruitment and Retention Committee (PPRRC) President Keith Warren.

"We now have a situation that doctors, the physicians themselves, are the gatekeepers to the services meaning that if you have a chronic back pain, you can't go to the physiotherapist to get help without getting an order from the doctor unless you're prepared to pay out of your own pocket. So I think it is time to rethink those kinds of ways to do business, so to speak, so that you can go directly to physiotherapist so they can bill Alberta Health Services, or the chiropractor, or whatever it is that you need to supplement those," said Warren.

Shortage of physicians not just local issue

DOCTORS from pg. 17

"We take the people that have the most education, the brightest minds in order to achieve that education level, and we make them the gatekeepers. And it worked fine when our population was 800,000 in the province but now with 4.3 million it's not working and we still have 7,300 doctors. We had the same amount then," he added.

Warren is hoping to have public conversations where people can talk about what kind of health services they expect to see in the community.

"Hopefully we will start this dialogue over 18 months or two years and that's what needs to happen. Community meetings that would say what is it that is the primary care that we need here," he explained.

"What do we as a community expect from our medical needs, to be met and that's a reasonable question to ask. It may not be just physicians, we may start to look at more nurse practitioners, more dietitians, we need to be looking for midwives, that type of service," he said.

Gellinas did apply to the out of country claims department with the Alberta Health Services to claim some of her expenses from her knee surgery. She received a little more than $600 along with a letter that said the money is equivalent to what the surgery would have cost her in the province.

She said the process was long and painful where her package was returned on more than one occasion. It was sent to the wrong department at first and needed minor changes the second. Considering how much she received, she will not bother to apply again.

"When I submitted the claim it took months and months before I heard anything. And they sent the whole thing back to me and said you sent it to the wrong department after months of it just being there and so then there was a phone number and I got on the phone and I talked to somebody. And all they would've had to do is forward them, but they sent it to me. And they said they didn't have the complete information so I made sure all my ducks were in a row, and I believe it came back to me one more time. They were just not picking, and finally I sent it back to her, and I said can you just phone me next time?" she added.

"The whole thing is a joke. The whole healthcare system is a joke here," she said.

"They roll out the red carpet for you when you go down there (to the U.S.), they really do. When you're paying out of pocket, you're treated really well, and actually both doctors said the same thing. They were like what the heck's going on in Canada that you have to come down here to see us? Like the surgeon who did my knee, he actually wrote a letter for me to submit to Alberta Health care to see if I could recoup some of the expenses and he was like this is appalling that she has to come down here to see me that if she stayed in her own country, that it would probably be more than a year, that someone would see her," said Gellinas explaining her experience in the U.S.

Gigg said the majority of doctors in Drayton Valley have come from not just out of the area, but out of the country. Warren said when it comes to attracting doctors to the area the local committee is working to show all Drayton Valley has to offer.

Warren said when it comes to attracting doctors to the area the local committee is working to show all Drayton Valley has to offer.

the extent of what we can do. The clinics show the clinics, the hospitals show the hospitals, and every one of those physicians that come here see five other communities, minimum. For whatever reason they could go elsewhere. And we have such a shortage, it's not just Drayton Valley, it's everywhere in rural Alberta," said Warren.

Meanwhile local doctors are trying to meet the need, which can result in a longer wait.

Gigg explained the wait times at Claro Clinic depends on the doctor.

"My policy is if someone is really sick especially sick children, they're never turned away from this clinic. The problem is people expect to be seen today, given the situation of shortage of doctors it can't always be that way," he said.

He explained many people who go to the emergency shouldn't be there. "You've been waiting for two hours but an ambulance has someone in an accident. Who is the doctor going to see, you or the person bleeding to death? But people don't get that, they say they got there first," he said.

Warren explained that the help paid at the hospital was a step in the right direction, so emergency patients can be in the city in a much shorter time period and hoped that the conversations that will soon take place will help the community. The creation of a local Primary Care Network, in the process of getting set up, is also designed to streamline some health services, helping to free up physicians from some of the issues patients come to them with, that could be better addressed by another health professional.

Mystery nets encourage play

Soccer association makes nets available for community children

Lesley Allan
Western Review

It was a pleasant mystery that few could answer when soccer nets and balls showed up in various parks and elementary schools around Drayton Valley.

Those behind the generosity, but unexplained act, say they did it to give back and to get children active, not for the recognition that could come with the donation.

"It encourages grass roots soccer, but it was more to encourage play," shares Brad Kelly, board member and technical director for the Drayton Valley and District Soccer Association (DVSA). "We knew they would get some use instead of just throwing them away; it's mostly just for the kids."

"We've (DVSA) had them for a while and now that we've got our new nets out at our fields in the county we had little use of them and they were in good shape," he explains as to why they decided to give them to the community. "We wanted to get them out sooner but we were busy so we didn't manage to get up there, so when we finally grabbed them we had some spare balls too so we threw out a bunch of balls and just set up the nets where we thought there would be the most kids. It's geared toward the kids."

In total Kelly says the DVSA put out approximately eight sets of nets that were accompanied by several balls, at schools such as Aurora and Evergreen, as well as in parks such as Rotary and Little Lions.

Without asking the community if the idea of community nets in parks was wanted or needed, volunteers from DVSA made their way around town dropping the nets with little idea as to how it would go over.

"We didn't know what was going to happen; we didn't know how the schools were going to react," shares Kelly. "Our actual biggest fear was that somebody was going to assume that they were left out and not use them, because they weren't sure if they were allowed to use them."

Explaining that schools did reach out to the Town of Drayton Valley with just these concerns, Kelly says that once it was established the nets were being donated teachers and staff was happy to accept the nets and balls.

Students on the other hand were on board with the idea right from initially seeing them and made sure to make use of them.

"With some of the schools the kids went there right away," he says. "After we set them there were a few kids that we saw just kind of hanging out away from everybody just leaning against a basketball pole or something, but when we drove back around to check on the nets those kids were out playing against each other, playing against other kids they wouldn't normally have socialized with, so it was an instant result."

According to Kelly, the nets set up in area parks have also had similar results with friends and family sending him pictures of children making use of what DVSA gave to the community they call home.

The idea of giving the nets to the community came from DVSA president Russ Kelly, and although Brad Kelly explains that the act could have been done as a way to encourage local youth to join up with their program, for everyone involved the intent was nothing more than to help make the area a better place and help get community more active.

"I think by doing this at this time of year, basically it shows that there's no hidden agenda, it's for the kids," he says. "We may not see any benefit from this to our program at all, but kids are playing, they're being active, and there's social aspect of it."

"We weren't looking for recognition," Kelly shares.

Tomahawk residents leave lasting legacy

Henry and Jane Joneson Endowment Fund set up with Drayton Valley Community Foundation

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

A couple who called Tomahawk home have given a gift to help the community they loved continue to flourish. Thanks to the posthumous gift of Henry and Jane Joneson, the Drayton Valley Community Foundation has been able to establish an endowment fund that will be invested back into community organizations and projects in the Tomahawk area through annual grants.

The Foundation is extremely excited about this contribution. This is our first will bequest and we were very surprised when we got the call," said Drayton Valley Community Foundation Chair Alex Blais in a release.

"We are very excited for Tomahawk and we hope this is a concept we can extend to other communities in the area."

The endowment fund has been established on a $200,000 gift from the Jonesons, which can be built on through additional donations over the years.

As with the community foundation's other funds, the principal amount will remain untouched while grants are given to successful applicants from the interest. The higher the principal the fund accumulates through donations, the more money available for grants.

"This is a great way for people to make donations that specifically benefit their community," said

Blais in the fund announcement. "Establishing field of interest funds is an excellent way for communities to ensure their local experiences continued growth and vitality."

Henry Joneson's roots in the Tomahawk community stretch back to 1922 when his father, Levi, drove a team and wagon from Chipman to establish himself on a quarter of land just west of Tomahawk. Henry Joneson would eventually get into the cattle business, starting with his own herd in 1957. He didn't meet Jane until later in life, moving her from her home in North Carolina to join the Tomahawk community. Once in the community, Jane Joneson taught at Tomahawk School before becoming principal at Lindale School.

Although outside the boundaries of Drayton Valley and Braxxau County, DVCFC Executive Director Brandy Fredrickson said the organization sees Tomahawk as a part of the broader community in the region.

"How we define community is us, as well as the people served in the greater area," she said. "We see Tomahawk as part of the community we serve."

Organizations in Tomahawk will be able to apply for grant money from the fund in 2015, noted Fredrickson.

The Jonesons gift may be the first will bequest the foundation has received, but it highlights another way in which residents can continue to contribute to their community.

For more information on the Henry and Jane Joneson Fund call Fredrickson at 780.514.2200, or e-mail dvcfc@century.net. Donations to the fund can be made online or by cheque. For more information on the community foundation go online to www.dvcfc.org.

PCN ready to introduce first focus

Mental health services will be rolled out soon

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

The Drayton Valley Primary Care Network (PCN) is close to launching the first of its three areas of focus — providing mental health services to the community. When the creation of the PCN was announced last winter, three areas of focus were also introduced, including mental health, chronic disease management and obstetrics and family planning. Work is now in the final stages to bring the first of those to the community.

Earlier this month Drayton Valley PCN Executive Director Marti Pickett said the organization was in the midst of meeting with local mental health professionals to get a better idea of the needs and gaps in the area. The PCN is also close to securing a location to open its mental health office and hiring staff, including a mental health therapist. One of those in place residents of the community will have another mental health resource.

"It's a great opportunity for the community," said Pickett, noting mental health was identified as an area of focus for the PCN due to the prevalence of need in the area.

The mental health services will be geared as a resource for short-term mental health issues, with the ability to direct those who need continued access to additional resources. This new service will also relieve the time local physicians spend dealing with the mental health issues of patients who haven't accessed other resources.

Once professionals are hired and the location secured, the PCN's mental health component will allow ease of access to mental health services. To further accommodate that Pickett said the office will have drop-in hours so anyone who feels the need to use the service will be able to do so without a referral or appointment. Finances won't be a barrier either.

"There's no cost to patients," said Pickett. "It will be covered under the program," he said.

It's important for people to seek help for mental health issues, whether short term, brought on by a temporary situation such as family crisis or work-related, or a longer-term issue, noted Pickett. He said the new service will act as a starting point, with some people being connected to continuing supports.

It's also a community issue that is best addressed collaboratively, which is why the PCN started out by meeting with existing mental health service providers in the area, he noted.

As the final pieces fall into place Pickett said residents should be watching for more information to come forward, including the announcement of the location where the mental health services will be housed.

SCI Drayton Valley celebrates a year of achievements

Lesley Allan Western Review

On Sept. 20 hunting and outdoor enthusiasts gathered at the MacKenzie Conference Centre for the 6th annual SCI - Drayton Valley Chapter Fundraising Banquet. The highly popular event, which sells out quickly every year, featured dinner, silent auctions and good company, all in an effort to continue funding the many programs that the local SCI chapter runs including their fishing pond, conservation initiatives and youth-based educational programs.

EVERGREEN

One month down already it is feeling a lot more like fall, which is a good thing for the Grade 1 classes who are studying the seasonal changes. Thanks to the school community and students for raising money for their research during the Terry Fox Run! saw many tonnes rolling into the office. Evergreen students dressed in red, celebrating our fabulous country and the goal that Terry Fox reached for. Way to go! The "green" school was "red" for the day! We also enjoyed our meet the staff BBQ and the colour me red event last on in the evening! Thanks to our health team for planning this activity!

Our Grade 5 students have been selected for an exciting study. The Biodiversity Institute of Ontario (BIO) has teamed up with students from schools to explore the insect diversity in their schoolyards through DNA barcoding, a genetic technique for identifying organisms. Using a Malaise trap, a tent-like apparatus, each school will collect hundreds of insect specimens. Students have already visited the trap in Miss McKenzie's backyard and created DNA art. Check out the website: <http://malaiseproject.com/bar-code-art/>. Evergreen's Breakfast Program has been going steady since Sept. 15. Snacks provided may include cereal, fruit, bagels, yogurt tubes, hand boiled eggs, milk, etc. A lot of hand work goes into making these programs a success and we are truly grateful to all of our volunteers!

Just a reminder about our parent-teacher interviews this week. Tomorrow (Wednesday) and Thursday, teachers are available from 5:30-8 p.m. You should have received an interview time from your teacher. During these interviews, you should get an early look at your child's strengths, areas for improvement, work completion and their general start to the new school year. Just a reminder for kindergarten parents: interviews are scheduled to take place after report cards in late November.

Next week, Drayton Valley is pleased to present Dr. Michael Hogue, Monday, Oct. 6, at the MacKenzie Centre from 7-9 p.m. Child care will be provided. He asks, "Could you use some tools to help your family deal with tough times?" This is a FREE presentation. A reminder for everyone that there is no school Oct. 10 or Oct. 13 in recognition of Thanksgiving Day. Enjoy the time spent with family and friends.

We would like to take the time to once again offer our congratulations to all the students who received recognition at our awards night last Tuesday. It was great seeing all of you collect your awards for your hard work last year. A special congratulations to our Grade 9 students from 2013/2014 who visited us at H.W. Pickup. It was a pleasure to celebrate all of your successes.

Our first school assembly was on Sept. 25. Our goal at the assembly was to recognize students from various classes who have encompassed this month's character trait, September's character trait was "preparation." Students were nominated by staff if they came prepared to class with materials, homework, and a positive attitude. This month's recipients are:

Grade 7 - Dylan Martindale, 7B - Charles DeLemme, 7C - Layden Blake, 7D - Alya McKim, 7E - Montana McKim, 8A - Mackenzie Wallbank, 8B - David Rancos, 8C - Roman Cioke, 8D - Ethan Blanchard, 8E - Liam Pedersen, 8A - Audrina Thomas, 8B - Brooke Mahan, 8C - Angela Waygood, 8D - Lauren Barwick, 8E - Gage Hogen.

The character trait for the upcoming month of October is "respect." This involves showing regard and appreciation for the worth of something or someone. Respect for self and respect for the rights and dignity of all people. Some things that staff will be watching for are: listening, speaking kindly to others, playing fairly, using manners, cleaning up after yourself and sharing.

The following students were selected for their hard work in their phys/d/option classes:

Tyler Best - Art 7, Braden Jozensen - Sci/Science, Emily Fitzpatrick - Card Making, Amy Kivimäki - Sci/Science, Regan Hude - Art 7, Reem Masri - Arts and Crafts, Bridget Foulkes-Gabouss - Arts and Crafts, Emma Kelly - Art 7, Brandi Olson - School Spirit, Kate Carr - Learn to Run.

Grade 7 - Top Male: Kourian Hall, Top Female: Madison St. Louis, Grade 8 Top Male: Daniel Cyr, Top Female: Lani Hickert, Grade 9 - Top Male: Ethan Steverson, Top Female: Rhannon Gressler. We would all like to offer a big congratulations to all of these students, and to all of our students here at H.W. Pickup for their hard work during the month of September!

A quick reminder that Hat Day will be Sept. 30. All students who are wearing a hat will receive one spirit point and teachers will receive five. Your spirit points will be added to your home room total. At the end of each term the home room's point total will be added up, and the class with the most points will receive a reward! We look forward to seeing you all in your vandy hats! Next Wednesday, Oct. 1 is parent-teacher night from 4-7 p.m., and our annual magazine fundraising campaign begins Oct. 7.

H.W. Pickup would also like to acknowledge an outstanding supporter and volunteer within our school: Brandi Seader. Although she no longer resides in Drayton Valley, we feel it is very important to acknowledge all of the time and energy that Brandi dedicated to our school in her role as School Council Chair and in numerous other ways. Whenever we needed help, Brandi always said yes, and we thank her immensely for that!

AURORA
The Aurora Walking Running Club will be starting up again in October for students in Grade 1-6. Students wantto participate will need a signed permission form as they will be going to run at the pond this fall and then in the spring. Our focus is on participation and improved fitness. Prizes will be awarded to participants completing a half marathon and/or full marathon. We will have two participation parties during the year where students who have been committed to running will be invited. Door prizes will be given at the parties. As in previous years, sponsorship of the parties or prizes is always welcome. We would like to thank: Properly Printing and Promotions for their donation of our running/walking chart. You guys only truly appreciated.

NOTEBOOK from pg. 27

Grade 2 students would like to thank Mr. Samson and Mr. Thompson from Vermillion Energy. They generously donated their time and expertise to teach us about the oil and gas industry. Students learned how oil and gas was formed, how it is discovered, extracted, refined and about some of the products that are made from it. They explained and demonstrated how they keep their employees safe through the use of air and noise monitors, safety air packs and hard hats. The children learned how important math and the sciences are for working in the industry and some of the different jobs required to bring oil to the surface.

The PAC had its first meeting of the year and officers were elected. They are: President — Tanya Bouchard, Vice President — Jim Schiavone (sell open), Treasurer — Carla Schneider. If you would like to step forward and fill the role of secretary, please contact a committee member. Next PAC meeting is Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. in the library. Thank you to everyone who participated in the Terry Fox Run last Wednesday around Northview Pond. The "T-shirt for Terry" fund sent an Aurora donation to support cancer research. School photos are now completed. A retake date will be announced.

We had our first of six required fire drills this year. Every one took their proper place. Offsite quickly and were all accounted for within a few minutes. Well done.

Good luck to our country runners who will be competing at zones on Oct. 8 and provincials on Oct. 18. Congratulations especially to Ryan McCrindle and Hayden Radlow.

its, who competed at the 15th annual Peace Hills Invitational two weeks ago, finishing 4 km in 21:12 and 6 km in 20:23 respectively. Well done, guys!

SUDOKU

More Fun It Works

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPES

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, though you are usually up for a conversation with someone you don't know, this week you could be in a more conservative mood. You'll have future chances to chat.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

You have been on a shopping binge of late. Taurus, if you have unlimited funds, this would not be so problematic. But finances are tight, and you should be more cautious.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Gemini, you are often an entertaining and fun person to have around. This is probably why you get so many invitations to parties and other social occasions. Enjoy your fortune.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Surround yourself with children this week, Cancer. They'll provide the needed, honest information you desire right now. It can certainly be eye-opening.

LEO - July 23/Aug 23

Spend some quality time with a romantic partner this week, Leo. He or she can provide more of what you need, such as true affection and companionship, than what's offered by friends.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Virgo, you deserve credit at the office. If you're patient, some measure of recognition will come your way this week. It's start to getting what you need.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Few people will accuse you of being uncommunicative, Libra. In fact, you're usually downright chatty. It's one of the traits people will admire most in you this month.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Scorpio, a new person comes into your life and your attraction to this person catches you off guard. It's okay to flirt, but if you're already attached to someone, leave it at that.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Sagittarius, you're often the one to take the lead in conversations in your group of friends, but this week someone else takes the lead. You're content to sit back and simply listen.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, once you have gained enough confidence in a special interest, you may be able to turn it into a career instead of just a hobby. Keep working toward that goal.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

It's time to tie up some loose ends, Aquarius. Rustle up some energy to take care of all those little things that need to be wrapped up. You'll feel a weight lift afterward.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Pisces, increase your level of activity this week. Exercise can do you a world of good, especially if you've felt sluggish of late.

The non-prescription problem solver

Mark Cullen

Autumn arrived this week and I bet you weren't thinking, "It is garlic planting time!" For most of us with planting on our mind, thoughts turn towards tulips, daffodils, fall flowering mums and flowering kale. But garlic?

When the fresh crop of tulip bulbs arrived at your local garden retailer earlier this month, you may have noticed that the garlic arrived also. You might love it or hate it, but there is no arguing that this is the best time of year to put it in the ground.

Growing garlic is odd counter-intuitive. You might naturally think of planting garlic when you plant your vegetables and herbs in the spring. The ancient herb is grown from a bulb or, to be more precise, a clove, which is broken off of a bulb. In short, you plant the cloves in the fall, harvest the 'scapes' early in summer, and harvest the bulbs in August. Here's how it works:

Use bulbs that you either acquired from friends, the grocery store, or from a reliable garden supplier and be sure of one thing—that they are locally produced. Retailers of seed garlic will tell you that you are smarter to grow 'seed garlic' than any old garden variety of grocery garlic. The seed garlic is 'virus indexed' meaning it has been grown for the purpose of growing on into more garlic, not for eating. They have been selected for their ability to grow virus free and are therefore disease and insect free at the time of planting. The same can be said for seed potatoes. Sure, the ones that you buy for eating will grow, but will they grow as well as the genuine seed-growing varieties? You might want to grow both side-by-side as an experiment.

SOIL

Prepare the growing area for garlic as you would potatoes and other sun-loving root crops. Carrots, onions, beets and the like enjoy an open, sandy soil. Garlic, being one tough customer, can be grown in enhanced clay-based soil by adding generous quantities of sharp (construction) sand. Spread the sand about 6 centimetres deep and turn it under several times with a garden fork until the sand/clay soil mix is thoroughly blended together.

When fall comes many gardeners might look to tulips, daffodils and late blooming flowers, but an important bulb to remember is garlic.

Get that garlic growing

If you have reasonably good quality soil, add generous quantities of compost or composted cattle manure to enrich the soil.

Feel the cloves from each bulb carefully and try to keep the papery layer intact on each clove as it protects the clove while it pushes down roots this fall. Make a trench in the soil about 6 cm. deep [2 to 3 inches] and drop each clove into the soil about 20 cm. [7 inches] apart. The rows should be about 50 cm or 1 1/2 ft apart.

Plant with the pointy side up. Firm each clove into the soil, open soil. Once planted, push the soil into the trench and step on it gently with your boots. This places the soil in firm contact with the bulb and creates a trench that will catch the water when you apply it.

Water generously at first. After that let the soil become dry to about 3 cm. deep between watering. Depending on rainfall, you may not have to water the garlic patch again until late spring. If garlic is overwatered, it is prone to rot.

Before the hard frost of November and early December your new garlic will start to poke through the soil, giving you a hint next spring of where it is located. This is handy, I find, as I would otherwise just plow the stuff over when preparing the soil come spring. Mark the row with a large sign that will not blow away and mulch each row with 30 cm of fresh straw before winter.

HARVEST

Come spring the best thing you can do for your garlic is to keep the weeds out of the patch. Garlic does not like competition any more than your petunias do. Early July the plants will produce the craviest looking leaf stalks, called scapes, which are entirely edible and quite expensive at the farmers' market. Cut them off and use them [or not]. By removing them you increase the size of the garlic bulbs that you harvest later in the season.

Dig (don't pull) up your garlic in late August, lay it out in the sun for a day or two and then store it in a shaded area with good air circulation for two to three weeks. Do not store it in direct sun as this will bleach the colour of the garlic and affect the flavor. Handle them gently as they do bruise easily. After a couple of weeks in a shaded, cool place with good air circulation [like your garage] cut the stems off and store in well-ventilated containers in a dark, cool place. The bulbs will remain 'fresh' until about April.

Hazel, and his sister, Gray, are just like the two from the fairy tale. They find themselves unlucky and far from home, without any human parents to care for them.
